

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

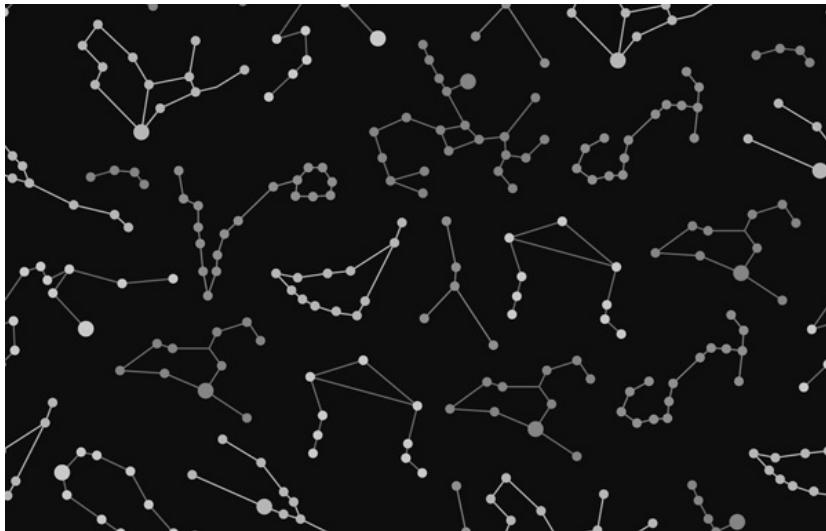

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

What's the highest grossing film of all time?

Learning Outcome

Understand detailed descriptions of real or imaginary events and experiences in present, past or future, in spoken interactions or written texts.

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about science and leisure time.
- I can discuss going out and socializing.
- I can explain my opinion, and make and refuse polite requests using if.

Ask your partner:

- Have you ever wanted to go to movie premieres? Which movies? Why?
- Have you ever been to a movie premiere? Was it crowded?

Let's Explore!

John and Peter are waiting in line.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- John: Wow! Look at the crazy lineup. I haven't seen the theater this crowded since Titanic. This movie must be very popular.
- Peter: It is. I have been waiting for it for almost two years. I believe it might even surpass Avatar as the highest grossing film of all time.
- John: Well, if people continue to flock to this movie at this rate, I am sure this movie will beat Avatar by next weekend.
- Peter: I agree with you. Oh no!
- John: What's wrong?
- Peter: I can't find my wallet. I must have left it on the coffee table at home.
- John: That's not good.
- Peter: Listen, I've got a proposition for you. If you cover my movie and popcorn, I'll get you dinner tomorrow.
- John: I don't know about that Peter. My credit card may be maxed out and I only have enough cash for my ticket and some popcorn.
- Peter: Let's try using your credit card. If it isn't too much to ask, there's nothing else we can do.
- John: I don't think it will work Peter. I tried it before and it was declined.
- Peter: It has to work John! I have been waiting to watch this movie for years. If you won't do it, I'll take it upon myself to do it.
- John: Relax Peter! It's not a big deal. If it's okay with you, there's always next time.
- Peter: I can't wait until next time. Please try! If you'll do it, I'll be forever grateful.
- John: Okay, okay Peter calm down. I really hope this movie is worth all the hype!

Let's Practice!

John narrates what happened with Peter.

Instructions: Complete the sentences by choosing from the options you are given.

Word Bank

it got declined / got a proposition / be maxed out / might even surpass / flock to this movie

1. I believe it _____ Avatar as the highest grossing film of all time.
2. If people continue to _____ at this rate, I am sure this movie can beat Avatar by next weekend.
3. Listen, I've _____ for you.
4. My credit card may _____ and I only have enough cash for my ticket and some popcorn.
5. I've tried it before and _____.

Let's Practice!

John and Peter speculate about what is going on.

Instructions: Match the sentences to the level of probability. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

- | | |
|--|-----------------------|
| 1. This movie could beat Avatar by next weekend. | a. almost certain |
| 2. My credit card may be maxed out. | b. it's possible |
| 3. I believe it might even surpass Avatar as the highest grossing picture of all time. | c. it's very unlikely |
| 4. It must work, John. I can't go home. | |
| 5. This movie may be very popular. | |

Extension Activity

Let's find out about your favorite movie!

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Go online or to your local library and look for information about the first movie you watched at a theater.
- Find out as much as you can about it: date of release, premier week, how it did at the box office.
- Reflect on when you watched it and how that experience was.
- Tell your partner about the information you found and also describe the time you watched it.
- Express your opinion about your partner's movie.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I read information about a movie.

☐
☐

I talk about my experience of going to the theater.

☐
☐

I talk about other's people preferences.

☐
☐

Target Words

- proposition (noun): proposal
e.g. Listen, I've got a proposition for you.
- to surpass (verb): to go beyond e.g. I believe it might even surpass "Avatar" as the highest grossing film of all time.
- to flock (verb): to come in large numbers
e.g. People continue to flock to this movie even though it's two years old.
- maxed out (adjective): at the limit
e.g. My credit card may be maxed out and I only have enough cash for my ticket and some popcorn.
- hype (noun): discussion that makes something seem more exciting than it actually is e.g. I really hope this movie is worth all this hype!
- to decline (verb): to refuse
e.g. I tried to use my card before and it was declined.

Learning Points

Must, Might, Could, May and Can't to Speculate about the Present

You can use the modal verbs must, might, could, may and can't to speculate or make guesses about something in the present. The modal you choose depends on the level of probability you want to express.

The grammar structure:

Level of Certainty	Modal Verb	+ base form of the verb (verb without "to") almost certain	must	+ base form of the verb (verb without "to")
it's possible	might could may	+ base form of the verb (verb without "to")
it's very unlikely	can't	+ base form of the verb (verb without "to")

You can use must for logical conclusions. There is a strong degree of certainty about the present situation and it's almost like you're making the "best guess" about something that's happening in the present.

You can use may, might and could to speculate about things in the present when there are other possibilities. These modals all have the same meaning.

You use can't when the situation is impossible.

Examples:

- This movie must be very popular.
- I believe it might even surpass Avatar as the highest grossing film of all time.
- I could try using my credit card.
- My credit card may be maxed out.
- I can't wait until next time.

Learning Points

Will and Won't in the If-clause to Express Polite Request or Refusal

You can ask someone to do something or refuse to do something politely by using will or won't in the if-clause.

Using will in the if-clause for these reasons is different from expressing future possibility. Remember, an if-clause is a dependent clause and cannot stand alone.

It must be added to a dependent clause to make a complete sentence.

You can use the following structures to make polite requests, and show insistence and refusal.

if + will → polite request (this is similar to saying "if you wouldn't mind")

If you'll just have a seat, the doctor will see you shortly.

(If you wouldn't mind having a seat, the doctor will see you shortly.)

if + will → insisting that someone do something (this is similar to saying "if you insist on")

If you will arrive at my house twenty minutes early, you must expect to wait for me to finish getting dressed.

(If you insist on arriving at my house twenty minutes early, you must expect to wait for me to finish getting dressed.)

if + won't → polite refusal (this is similar to saying "if you refuse to")

If you won't come to the party with me, we can stay home and watch movies instead.

(If you refuse to come to the party with me, we can stay home and watch movies instead.)

Pronunciation Note: When speaking and reading aloud, remember to stress the word won't a little more.

Examples:

- If you won't do it, I'll take it upon myself to do it.
- If you'll do it, I'll be forever grateful.

