Let's Start!

How about watching a sci-fi movie?

Learning Outcome

Understand detailed descriptions of real or imaginary events and experiences in present, past or future, in spoken interactions or written texts.

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about science and leisure time.
- I can discuss going out and socializing using words like who, that or which.
- I can explain my opinion.

Ask your partner:

- Do you like sci-fi movies? Explain.
- Would you ever travel into space? Why? Why not?

Let's Explore!

Peter and John go to a sci-fi movie!

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Peter: Hey John, do you want to catch a movie with me tonight? There's this great movie called, Mars, Monkey and Me, which has been the most anticipated movie of this year.
- John: Oh yeah. What kind of movie is it?
- Peter: It's a sci-fi movie which I'm sure you'll like. We can even go to the nearby theater that has the best popcorn in town.
- John: Oh really? I don't watch a lot of sci-fi movies, though. I spend most of my time watching comedies, which I find are always entertaining. But do tell me a bit more about this movie. I might give this one a chance, which is not usual for me.
- Peter: Well, it's about this guy who goes into space with his pet monkey, that he named Choco Chips. They set out on exploring Mars, which they thought was inhabitable. The movie chronicles their journey from Earth to Mars. It has a lot of comedic elements, which I'm convinced you would enjoy.
- John: Wow! That sounds like a movie I would definitely watch. What were the reviews like?
- Peter: Well according to Rogers, whose reviews I trust, the movie is a must-see.
- John: That sounds exciting! This is going to be my first sci-fi movie for the year. Let's go this Tuesday and catch the matinee. That way you can save some money, which we will definitely need for popcorn. We can't watch a movie without popcorn now, can we?
- Peter: Of course! Let's go!

Let's Practice!

Peter has some time to spare*.

*If you have time "to spare", you have free time for leisure activities.

Instructions: Answer the following question by choosing from the options you are given.

1. Which of the following sentences talk about leisure time activities?
  - a) Hey John, wanna catch a movie?
  - b) It's a sci-fi movie.
  - c) We can even go to the theater.
  - d) I spend time watching comedies.
  - e) In the movie, there's a journey from Earth to Mars.
  - f) The guy in the film goes into space.

Let's Practice!

Peter tells John about the movie and the theater.

Instructions: Match the beginning of the sentence to the end of the sentence. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

Learning Points

Defining Relative Clauses as Subject

You need to use relative pronouns in defining relative clauses. These pronouns identify the noun you are giving information about.

Some relative pronouns refer to the noun that is the subject of the sentence.

The relative pronouns you can use to refer to people are who and that.

The relative pronouns you can use to refer to things are which and that.

The relative pronoun you can use to show possession is whose.

For example:

It's about this guy who takes his monkey on the flight. (who refers to "the guy")

We can even go to the nearby theater that has the best popcorn in town. (that refers to "the nearby theater")

Usage Note: Who is more commonly used than that for people, and that is more commonly used than which for things.

A common mistake when forming relative clauses is repeating the subject. You do not need to use the pronoun again because the relative clause already identifies the noun.

It's about this guy who ~~he~~ goes into space with his pet monkey.

We can even go to the nearby theater that ~~it~~ has the best popcorn in town.

Examples:

- Well, it's about a guy who wants to go into space.
- That sounds like a movie that I would definitely watch.
- Well according to Rogers, whose reviews I trust, the movie is a must see.

Learning Points

Explaining Your Opinion

Sometimes when you discuss ideas with others, you may have very strong opinions about the topic. You may be very certain about what you believe and want to express that.

You can use the expressions below to give strong opinions. You can see how they are different from the weaker opinions where the speaker sounds less certain.

| Stronger Opinions                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Weaker Opinions                                                                                                                                                              |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| I strongly believe that... I'm sure that... I'm absolutely/quite certain/convinced/sure that... I have no doubt that... I would definitely say... | I'm not sure, but I think that... I guess that... I suppose that... Well according to... |

Remember that not everyone will share your opinion and sometimes strong opinions can offend others. Be aware of your tone of voice and the reactions of the listener.

Examples:

- *It also has a lot of comedic elements, which I'm convinced you would enjoy.
- *That sounds like a movie that I would definitely watch.
- *It's a sci-fi movie which I'm sure you'll like.
